

From Lucile's Diary

Carl Bates has been so very nice to me ever since I met him at Lakeside a few weeks ago that I was anxious to give some sort of party to which I could invite him. So I suggested to Louise Irwin that we have a quartet beach supper at Jackson park.

"If you'll take some of your delicious sandwiches and cake," I said to her, "I'll provide fruit and the wieners-wursts and marshmallows to roast in the beach fire."

Louise did not look transported at what I considered a rather magnanimous arrangement, so I continued: "I always envy your ability, dear. If I could make as dainty things to eat as you do I should be very proud, indeed."

"Well, I can bake some of my new English cheese cakes," she said, quite amiably.

"Oh, that will be splendid," I exclaimed. "I'll ask Mr. Bates to bring his English friend, Lionel Hawley. The cakes will be in his honor," I added, merrily.

"But I intended to invite Canby Fuller," she objected.

"Oh, you can entertain him some other time," I explained. "You see, I'm getting up this little party especially for Mr. Bates and, of course, the proper thing is to invite also his most intimate friend. I should think you'd be glad to meet a new man once in a while."

Louise must have taken this remark of mine to heart, for on the way out in Aunt Rachel's motor car—which I borrowed of her chauffeur, telling him that Aunt Rachel would like to have me use it occasionally while she was out of town—Louise was exceedingly attentive to Mr. Hawley. I was quite mortified, for I naturally wished him to have a true idea of the dignity and reserve of American girls. When we got to the beach, I suggested to Louise that she unpack her basket while the men built a fire.

"Where are your things?" she asked. "Why, I explained, 'I thought the wieners-wursts wouldn't be appropriate on such a hot night.'"

"But where are your other things?" persisted Louise.

If she had had any tact she would have grasped the fact that I had forgotten the fruit and marshmallows. Her inquiries were most inconsiderate. "If there's anything needed I can get it over at the German building," suggested Mr. Bates.

"That's awfully good of you," I said. "I'll have the chauffeur make the fire while you're gone." Then I gayly warned Mr. Hawley when he started to assist Louise. "You mustn't go near Miss Erwin's basket," I said, "for there's a surprise in it for you. Come and sit down by me."

When he did as I directed I said: "I'm getting so engrossed in palmistry that I should like to read the lines in your hand. May I see them?"

"Awfully kind of you," replied Mr. Hawley, extending his palms.

I read it quite successfully. I told him that he was ambitious and energetic and that his fate line had brought him across many waters to a pleasant destiny. He seemed much impressed. "Did Mr. Bates when he returned," he asked, "read also, and if so, did he read the whole evening to interpret fully the lines in his and his friend's palms. The glow of the firelight made my little attempt at fortune telling and character study seem quite romantic and oriental."

"Isn't your knowledge of palmistry extremely recent?" asked Louise in the midst of my interpretations. "I never knew you were such an expert, Lucile."

"You don't know all my accomplishments," I laughingly replied. "Now, dear, we must have those delicious tea cakes of yours."

I am sure that both Carl and Mr. Hawley admired by retort courtesies. But, notwithstanding my perfect good humor, Louise appeared glum. She said so little while we ate that I had to exert myself to be entertaining. The more I laughed and talked the deeper her gloom became. Poor Louise is so crude.

Although she added so little to the evening, I enjoyed it very much myself. Indeed, if Aunt Rachel had not telephoned the next day and upbraided me for borrowing her car I should look back on the beach party as an extremely pleasant memory.

I think Aunt Rachel is ungenerous and unreasonable to be annoyed because I happened to have her automobile the night she came home unexpectedly from the country. She should have telegraphed her chauffeur early in the day instead of waiting till nearly the time she wanted him to meet her. It is surprising how thoughtless some people are even about their own affairs.

Education and Common Sense. There are times when a good education is of small importance compared with a good stock of common sense.

"I did admit it to the professor though," she added, "and the disillusioned man went sadly away with the impression that I was a shallow young person, after all."

"Never mind," remarked Mrs. Allison, soothingly. "That professor is wall-eyed, anyway."

"So he is," said the fluffy-haired blonde, with a sigh, "but you know yourself that it's nice to be admired."

The opinions of other people would be more interesting if they did not conflict with our own.

Studies in Gratitude.

"All I got for my trouble was a thank you," said the man who begrudges friendly effort. "You're lucky," replied the billionaire philanthropist. "I'm expected to say 'thank you' to people who find me a suitable method of giving my money away."

The Usual Way.

It was little Marion's first day at Sunday school; her mother had given her a penny for collection. After Sunday school was over, her mother noticed that Marion had two pennies. "Why, Marion, where did you get that other penny?" she queried. "Oh, they passed the pennies and I took one," was the naive reply.

"Title Talks"

The Business of Abstracting

The business of Abstracting titles is of comparatively recent growth. As lands increase in value, the need of title security becomes more and more imperative.

It is just as sensible to safeguard the title to a thousand dollar vacant lot or to any other property, as it is to keep your thousand dollar bond under lock and key.

PROTECTION IN EITHER CASE IS THE THING SOUGHT.

Good titles make real estate as negotiable as stocks and bonds. There is no way of being sure about the title except by the help of an abstract by a reliable company.
